

▲ Mohamed Salah has scored 255 goals for Liverpool to place him third in the club's all-time list JAVIER GARCÍA/SHUTTERSTOCK

▲The Egyptian played a huge role in Liverpool's two Premier League title successes MICHAEL REGAN/GETTY IMAGES FOR THE PREMIER LEAGUE

his greatest goal, amid a lot of competition, was probably his solo run in the 2-2 draw at home against Manchester City in October 2021. He played a huge part too in Liverpool's two Premier League titles: 19 goals in 2019-20 and 29 last season, when Slot gave him the freedom to operate high on the right and, with Alexander-Arnold behind him and Dominik Szoboszlai plus Gravenberch compensation for his lack of tracking. But as the system has changed, so has the environment and Salah's effectiveness. Perhaps it would have been better had he left at the end of last season, but it would have taken real ruthlessness and clear-sightedness, from both sides, to move on after such a high. There can be debate about where in the pantheon of great Liverpool forwards Salah stands, but that he is in the pantheon, and near the top, is beyond dispute. Soon, the anticlimactic final season will be forgotten, and he will be remembered as the club legend he is, wriggling in form the right, setting the ball on to his left and arcing it at pace into the corner – just as he did last Wednesday.

'I will never walk alone,' Salah says in tribute to fans

Continued from back page

you for everything. Because of all of you, I will never walk alone." While the timing of Salah's announcement comes as a surprise, the decision between the 33-year-old and Liverpool does not. The club said that Salah "expressed his wish to make this announcement to the supporters at the earliest possible opportunity to provide transparency about his future due to his respect and gratitude for them".

The forward was the driving force behind Liverpool's record-equalling 20th league title last season and was rewarded with a lucrative two-year contract in April 2025.

His form has deteriorated this season, however, and his Liverpool future was in doubt from the moment he accused the club of throwing him under the bus for the team's terrible run of results in December. Salah, who was subsequently dropped from Liverpool's Champions League trip to Inter, also claimed his relationship with the head coach, Arne Slot, was nonexistent.

Salah, however, was quickly reintegrated into the side and delivered a reminder of his talent only last week against Galatasaray. A stunning strike in the 4-0 Champions League victory meant Salah became the first player from Africa to score 50 goals in the competition.

Salah joined Liverpool for £34m from Roma in 2017 and, as well as a host of individual honours and records, he has won two Premier League titles, the Champions League, the Club World Cup, Uefa Super Cup, the FA Cup and two League Cups.

Despite a poor title defence, Slot's team have reached the quarter-finals of the Champions League and FA Cup where they will face the holders, Paris Saint-Germain, and Manchester City respectively after the international break. Salah is sidelined with a muscle injury but has not been ruled out of the trip to the Etihad stadium on 4 April.

The striker has won the Premier League's Golden Boot award four times during his phenomenal Liverpool career and has also been named the Professional Footballers' Association player of the year on three occasions. In September 2023 Liverpool rejected a bid worth up to £150m from Al-Ittihad for Salah, believing he would have taken real ruthlessness and clear-sightedness, from both sides, to move on after such a high.

In a statement accompanying Salah's video message, the club said: "With plenty still left to play for this season, Salah is firmly focused on trying to achieve the best possible finish to the campaign for Liverpool and, therefore, the time to fully celebrate his legacy and achievements will follow later in the year when he bids farewell to Anfield."

▼ Nigel Farage joked he could be in line for the Ipswich manager's job

Ipswich fans criticise club for 'embarrassing' Farage visit

Ipswich Town has insisted it remains an "inclusive and diverse" organisation after Nigel Farage turned a tour of Portman Road into a campaign event. During a visit to the ground on Monday, Farage filmed himself in the home dressing room, held up a shirt

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online. Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next season and I'm definitely on the shortlist." The video was criticised by Ipswich supporters who described it as "shameful", "embarrassing" and "PR suicide for a family club". The club issued a statement yesterday distancing itself from the Reform Party leader. "Ipswich has, over several years, hosted representatives from a range of political parties. The club remains apolitical and does not endorse any individual or party," the statement read. "Ipswich is proud to be an inclusive, diverse, and welcoming organisation that supports all members of the local and wider community."

It is understood that Farage was not an invited guest at the club. According to reports by the East Anglian Daily Times, the tour was booked without using Reform or Farage's name and the printed shirt was bought from the club shop and not gifted to the 61-year-old. Reform, meanwhile, posted a further video of Farage at Portman Road yesterday afternoon, where he thanked the club for a "lovely welcome".

Local rivals Norwich City posted what appeared to be their own response to the Farage tour, advertising visits to Carrow Road, warning "terms and conditions will most definitely apply". Farage replied to the Norwich post on X, saying "See you next week!"

my talents. I'm glad that this season is going as well as it is." He has been an integral member of David Moyes's Everton side, who sit eighth in the Premier League. Predominantly a central midfielder, Garner has also featured regularly as a right-back when required and is a set-piece expert. Such versatility could be favourable when Tuchel names his 26-man squad.

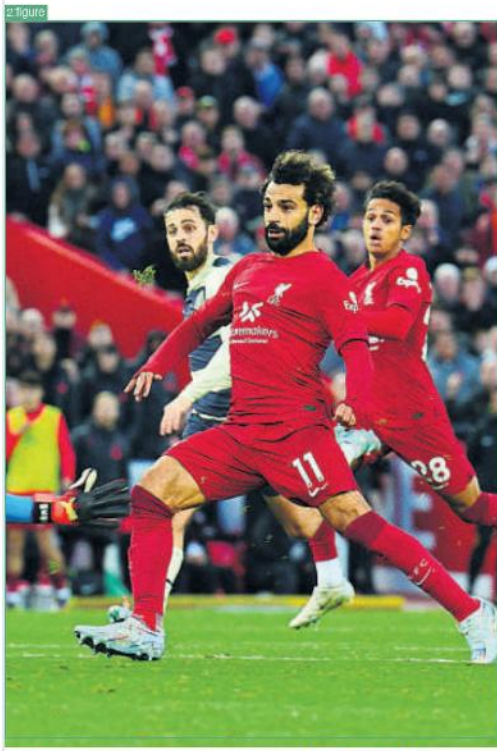

Garner has featured for England at youth level from under-17s to under-21s, and was a member of the team that won the Under-21 European Championship in 2023, alongside James Trafford and Cole Palmer, who are also part of the current squad. "Just want to go that one step further now and hopefully win a trophy for the first team as well," Garner said.

Having come through the ranks at Manchester United and then joining Everton, Garner has created split loyalties, coming from a Liverpool-supporting family. He is hoping his father will travel to Wembley this week from his home in Thailand.

"My dad's very proud. Phoning him this time about England rather than a club that he doesn't support is very nice and it was a very nice call."

Griezmann set for move to Orlando in summer

Atlético Madrid have confirmed Antoine Griezmann will join Major League Soccer side Orlando City in the summer. Atlético said Griezmann, who has scored 211 goals in 488 appearances for the club, recently travelled to Orlando to finalise a two-year contract. The Orlando owner and chair, Mark Wilf, said: "Bringing Antoine to Orlando is a landmark moment not only for our club, but for our city, our supporters and for MLS." PA Media

▲ Mohamed Salah has scored 255 goals for Liverpool to place him third in the club's all-time list JAVIER GARCÍA/SHUTTERSTOCK

▲The Egyptian played a huge role in Liverpool's two Premier League title successes MICHAEL REGAN/GETTY IMAGES FOR THE PREMIER LEAGUE

his greatest goal, amid a lot of competition, was probably his solo run in the 2-2 draw at home against Manchester City in October 2021. He played a huge part too in Liverpool's two Premier League titles: 19 goals in 2019-20 and 29 last season, when Slot gave him the freedom to operate high on the right and, with Alexander-Arnold behind him and Dominik Szoboszlai plus Gravenberch compensation for his lack of tracking. But as the system has changed, so has the environment and Salah's effectiveness. Perhaps it would have been better had he left at the end of last season, but it would have taken real ruthlessness and clear-sightedness, from both sides, to move on after such a high. There can be debate about where in the pantheon of great Liverpool forwards Salah stands, but that he is in the pantheon, and near the top, is beyond dispute. Soon, the anticlimactic final season will be forgotten, and he will be remembered as the club legend he is, wriggling in form the right, setting the ball on to his left and arcing it at pace into the corner – just as he did last Wednesday.

'I will never walk alone,' Salah says in tribute to fans

Continued from back page

you for everything. Because of all of you, I will never walk alone." While the timing of Salah's announcement comes as a surprise, the decision between the 33-year-old and Liverpool does not. The club said that Salah "expressed his wish to make this announcement to the supporters at the earliest possible opportunity to provide transparency about his future due to his respect and gratitude for them".

The forward was the driving force behind Liverpool's record-equalling 20th league title last season and was rewarded with a lucrative two-year contract in April 2025.

His form has deteriorated this season, however, and his Liverpool future was in doubt from the moment he accused the club of throwing him under the bus for the team's terrible run of results in December. Salah, who was subsequently dropped from Liverpool's Champions League trip to Inter, also claimed his relationship with the head coach, Arne Slot, was nonexistent.

Salah, however, was quickly reintegrated into the side and delivered a reminder of his talent only last week against Galatasaray. A stunning strike in the 4-0 Champions League victory meant Salah became the first player from Africa to score 50 goals in the competition.

Salah joined Liverpool for £34m from Roma in 2017 and, as well as a host of individual honours and records, he has won two Premier League titles, the Champions League, the Club World Cup, Uefa Super Cup, the FA Cup and two League Cups.

Despite a poor title defence, Slot's team have reached the quarter-finals of the Champions League and FA Cup where they will face the holders, Paris Saint-Germain, and Manchester City respectively after the international break. Salah is sidelined with a muscle injury but has not been ruled out of the trip to the Etihad stadium on 4 April.

The striker has won the Premier League's Golden Boot award four times during his phenomenal Liverpool career and has also been named the Professional Footballers' Association player of the year on three occasions. In September 2023 Liverpool rejected a bid worth up to £150m from Al-Ittihad for Salah, believing he would have taken real ruthlessness and clear-sightedness, from both sides, to move on after such a high.

In a statement accompanying Salah's video message, the club said: "With plenty still left to play for this season, Salah is firmly focused on trying to achieve the best possible finish to the campaign for Liverpool and, therefore, the time to fully celebrate his legacy and achievements will follow later in the year when he bids farewell to Anfield."

▼ Nigel Farage joked he could be in line for the Ipswich manager's job

Ipswich fans criticise club for 'embarrassing' Farage visit

Ipswich Town has insisted it remains an "inclusive and diverse" organisation after Nigel Farage turned a tour of Portman Road into a campaign event. During a visit to the ground on Monday, Farage filmed himself in the home dressing room, held up a shirt

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online. Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next season and I'm definitely on the shortlist." The video was criticised by Ipswich supporters who described it as "shameful", "embarrassing" and "PR suicide for a family club". The club issued a statement yesterday distancing itself from the Reform Party leader. "Ipswich has, over several years, hosted representatives from a range of political parties. The club remains apolitical and does not endorse any individual or party," the statement read. "Ipswich is proud to be an inclusive, diverse, and welcoming organisation that supports all members of the local and wider community."

It is understood that Farage was not an invited guest at the club. According to reports by the East Anglian Daily Times, the tour was booked without using Reform or Farage's name and the printed shirt was bought from the club shop and not gifted to the 61-year-old. Reform, meanwhile, posted a further video of Farage at Portman Road yesterday afternoon, where he thanked the club for a "lovely welcome".

Local rivals Norwich City posted what appeared to be their own response to the Farage tour, advertising visits to Carrow Road, warning "terms and conditions will most definitely apply". Farage replied to the Norwich post on X, saying "See you next week!"

my talents. I'm glad that this season is going as well as it is."

He has been an integral member of David Moyes's Everton side, who sit eighth in the Premier League. Predominantly a central midfielder, Garner has also featured regularly as a right-back when required and is a set-piece expert. Such versatility could be favourable when Tuchel names his 26-man squad.

Garner has featured for England at youth level from under-17s to under-21s, and was a member of the team that won the Under-21 European Championship in 2023, alongside James Trafford and Cole Palmer, who are also part of the current squad. "Just want to go that one step further now and hopefully win a trophy for the first team as well," Garner said.

Having come through the ranks at Manchester United and then joining Everton, Garner has created split loyalties, coming from a Liverpool-supporting family. He is hoping his father will travel to Wembley this week from his home in Thailand.

"My dad's very proud. Phoning him this time about England rather than a club that he doesn't support is very nice and it was a very nice call."

Griezmann set for move to Orlando in summer

Atlético Madrid have confirmed Antoine Griezmann will join Major League Soccer side Orlando City in the summer. Atlético said Griezmann, who has scored 211 goals in 488 appearances for the club, recently travelled to Orlando to finalise a two-year contract. The Orlando owner and chair, Mark Wilf, said: "Bringing Antoine to Orlando is a landmark moment not only for our club, but for our city, our supporters and for MLS." PA Media

▲ Mohamed Salah has scored 255 goals for Liverpool to place him third in the club's all-time list JAVIER GARCÍA/SHUTTERSTOCK

▲The Egyptian played a huge role in Liverpool's two Premier League title successes MICHAEL REGAN/GETTY IMAGES FOR THE PREMIER LEAGUE

his greatest goal, amid a lot of competition, was probably his solo run in the 2-2 draw at home against Manchester City in October 2021. He played a huge part too in Liverpool's two Premier League titles: 19 goals in 2019-20 and 29 last season, when Slot gave him the freedom to operate high on the right and, with Alexander-Arnold behind him and Dominik Szoboszlai plus Gravenberch compensation for his lack of tracking. But as the system has changed, so has the environment and Salah's effectiveness. Perhaps it would have been better had he left at the end of last season, but it would have taken real ruthlessness and clear-sightedness, from both sides, to move on after such a high. There can be debate about where in the pantheon of great Liverpool forwards Salah stands, but that he is in the pantheon, and near the top, is beyond dispute. Soon, the anticlimactic final season will be forgotten, and he will be remembered as the club legend he is, wriggling in form the right, setting the ball on to his left and arcing it at pace into the corner – just as he did last Wednesday.

'I will never walk alone,' Salah says in tribute to fans

Continued from back page

you for everything. Because of all of you, I will never walk alone." While the timing of Salah's announcement comes as a surprise, the decision between the 33-year-old and Liverpool does not. The club said that Salah "expressed his wish to make this announcement to the supporters at the earliest possible opportunity to provide transparency about his future due to his respect and gratitude for them".

The forward was the driving force behind Liverpool's record-equalling 20th league title last season and was rewarded with a lucrative two-year contract in April 2025.

His form has deteriorated this season, however, and his Liverpool future was in doubt from the moment he accused the club of throwing him under the bus for the team's terrible run of results in December. Salah, who was subsequently dropped from Liverpool's Champions League trip to Inter, also claimed his relationship with the head coach, Arne Slot, was nonexistent.

Salah, however, was quickly reintegrated into the side and delivered a reminder of his talent only last week against Galatasaray. A stunning strike in the 4-0 Champions League victory meant Salah became the first player from Africa to score 50 goals in the competition.

Salah joined Liverpool for £34m from Roma in 2017 and, as well as a host of individual honours and records, he has won two Premier League titles, the Champions League, the Club World Cup, Uefa Super Cup, the FA Cup and two League Cups.

Despite a poor title defence, Slot's team have reached the quarter-finals of the Champions League and FA Cup where they will face the holders, Paris Saint-Germain, and Manchester City respectively after the international break. Salah is sidelined with a muscle injury but has not been ruled out of the trip to the Etihad stadium on 4 April.

The striker has won the Premier League's Golden Boot award four times during his phenomenal Liverpool career and has also been named the Professional Footballers' Association player of the year on three occasions. In September 2023 Liverpool rejected a bid worth up to £150m from Al-Ittihad for Salah, believing he had much more to offer at Premier League level. That proved to be the case until this season, one that followed the tragic death of Diogo Jota, a close friend of Salah.

In a statement accompanying Salah's video message, the club said: "With plenty still left to play for this season, Salah is firmly focused on trying to achieve the best possible finish to the campaign for Liverpool and, therefore, the time to fully celebrate his legacy and achievements will follow later in the year when he bids farewell to Anfield."

Football In brief

Lens oppose PSG bid to move key league fixture

▼ Nigel Farage joked he could be in line for the Ipswich manager's job

Ipswich fans criticise club for 'embarrassing' Farage visit

Ipswich Town has insisted it remains an "inclusive and diverse" organisation after Nigel Farage turned a tour of Portman Road into a campaign event. During a visit to the ground on Monday, Farage filmed himself in the home dressing room, held up a shirt

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online. Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next

with the No 10 and his name on the back, and suggested he was in the running for the manager's job at the club in a promotional video posted online.

Farage said that Ipswich, who are third in the Championship table, "are really in contention" to go back into the Premier League. "Let's hope they do it," he said, "but if they don't, I think there's the chance of the manager's job coming up next season and I'm definitely on the shortlist." The video was criticised by Ipswich supporters who described it as "shameful", "embarrassing" and "PR suicide for a family club". The club issued a statement yesterday distancing itself from the Reform Party leader. "Ipswich has, over several years, hosted representatives from a range of political parties. The club remains apolitical and does not endorse any individual or party," the statement read. "Ipswich is proud to be an inclusive, diverse, and welcoming organisation that supports all members of the local and wider community."

It is understood that Farage was not an invited guest at the club. According to reports by the East Anglian Daily Times, the tour was booked without using Reform or Farage's name and the printed shirt was bought from the club shop and not gifted to the 61-year-old. Reform, meanwhile, posted a further video of Farage at Portman Road yesterday afternoon, where he thanked the club for a "lovely welcome".

Local rivals Norwich City posted what appeared to be their own response to the Farage tour, advertising visits to Carrow Road, warning "terms and conditions will most definitely apply". Farage replied to the Norwich post on X, saying "See you next week!"

my talents. I'm glad that this season is going as well as it is."

He has been an integral member of David Moyes's Everton side, who sit eighth in the Premier League. Predominantly a central midfielder, Garner has also featured regularly as a right-back when required and is a set-piece expert. Such versatility could be favourable when Tuchel names his 26-man squad.

Garner has featured for England at youth level from under-17s to under-21s, and was a member of the team that won the Under-21 European Championship in 2023, alongside James Trafford and Cole Palmer, who are also part of the current squad. "I just want to go that one step further now and hopefully win a trophy for the first team as well," Garner said.

Having come through the ranks at Manchester United and then joining Everton, Garner has created split loyalties, coming from a Liverpool-supporting family. He is hoping his father will travel to Wembley this week from his home in Thailand.

"My dad's very proud. Phoning him this time about England rather than a club that he doesn't support is very nice and it was a very nice call."

Griezmann set for move to Orlando in summer

Atlético Madrid have confirmed Antoine Griezmann will join Major League Soccer side Orlando City in the summer. Atlético said Griezmann, who has scored 211 goals in 488 appearances for the club, recently travelled to Orlando to finalise a two-year contract. The Orlando owner and chair, Mark Wilf, said: "Bringing Antoine to Orlando is a landmark moment not only for our club, but for our city, our supporters and for MLS." PA Media